LONG ISLAND RAILROAD-ENGINEER

Correspondence of The N. Y. Tribune SOUTHOLD, L. I., Wednesday, Sept. 27, 1854.

As the train running from Brooklyn to Greenport,

As the train running from Brooklyn to Greenport, on the Long Island Railrond, neared the Manor Station yesterday the engineer, Mr. Roc, was thrown a the car or engine by having his head thrown where ally against a sign-post. He put his head from the train when it was in motion, when it was struck by the post aforesaid. His skull was fractured by the blow. He was taken to Greenport, where his family reside, and died during last night.

Last night about el o clock a fire broke out in the bone boiling and tallow trying establishment of Jas. Horrby, in Fortiethst, near the Seventhav. Several fire companies were early on the ground, but before they could subdue the flames the establishment was nearly destroyed. The loss is estimated at about $1,500. Insured for $1,000 in the Bowery Insurance Company.

Myrrer in Princess Anne County.—A most revolting and inhuman murder was committed on Friday night last, in Princess Anne, by some fiend in human shape, upon the person of Mr. F. Augustus McAlpin; his body was found on Saturday morning, about three mi'es from the Court House, lying on the nide of the rosa so horribly gashed and mangled that his lungs and bowels protruded from the wounds; no less than thirty-six stabs and cuts were inflicted by the murderer. That it was a cold-blooded and deliberate murder, is evident from the fact that there were no marks of a struggle on the ground, the nocketbook (containing money and papers) of the deceased was untouched, and his horse was found carefully tied to a fence with the stirrups thrown across the saddle, about one mile from the scene of blood. We have been informed that Mr. McAlpine, unfortunately had an alterention at the court house on Friday afternoon with an individual, who drew a knife on hum—high words ensued, but no fight took place. This person with an individual, who drew a knife on hum-high words ensued, but no fight took place. This person left the court-house, and some 15 or 20 minutes afterward, Mr. McAlpine mounted his horse to return home; nothing more was seen or heard of him until Saturday morning, when his mangited body was found. Suspicion was immediately directed to a Mr. Ewell, the person referred to, and he was arrested; the evidence, however, not being deemed sufficient the service of the ser by the examining magistrates to warrant their sending him on for further trial, he was discharged from cus-tody. Mr. McAlpine was 25 years of age, and has left a widow and two children to nourn with agonized hearts, the loss of an affectionate husband and a ten-der father. [Norfolk Va. Nows, 25th.

REMARKABLE ANECDOTE,—A correspondent of The Petersburg Express, at Charlestown, Va., communicates to that paper the following series of incidents, which, if true, are certainly very singular: Washington was accustomed to wear on his watch two seals, one gold and the other silver. Upon one of them the letters G. W. were engraved, or rather cut. The seals he wore as early as 1754, and they were about his person the terrible day of Braddock's defeat. On that day he lost the silver seal. The gold one remained with the general until the day of his death, and was then given by him to his nephew, a gentleman of Virginia, who carefully preserved it until about seventeen years ago, when riding over his farm he dropped it. The other day the gold seal, lost about seventeen years ago, when riding over his farm be dropped it. The other day the gold seal, lost seventeen years ago, was "plowed up, "recognized from the letters "G.W.," on it, and restored to the son of the gentleman to whom Washington had presented it. At almost the same time the silver seal lost in 1754, just one hundred years ago, was plowed up on the site in which Braddock was defeated and in like mmner recognized from the letters "G.W." So that in a very short time the companions will be egain united. I have this while feated and in the manner reconstruction of the com-panions will be exain united. I have this whole statement from the most reliable source possible, pamely from the gentleman himself, who has thus re-stored to him these precious mementoes of his great Postmasters' Compensation.—Postmasters should remember, in making up their quarterly returns for the quarter to end on the 30th inst., (says The Washington Star.) that their percentage or compensation is to be different for that quarter from what they received for the last quarter. Thus they are to be hereafter as follows, viz.:

On any sum not exceeding one hundred dollars, sixty per cent.; but any Postmaster at whose office the mail is to arrive regularly, between the hours of nine o clock at night and five o clock in the morning, may be allowed seventy per cent. on the first hundred dollars.

On any sum over and above one hundred dollars.

On any sum over and above one hundred dollars. and not exceeding four hundred dollars, fifty per cent.
On any sum over and above four hundred dollars, but not exceeding twenty-four hundred dollars, forty And on all sums over twenty-four hundred dollars

A Female Steamboat Clerk.—According to The St. Louis Republican, there is one feature about the steamer Illinois Belle of peculiar attractiveness—a lady cierk: "Look at her bills of lading, and 'Mary "J. Patterson, clerk, will be seen traced in a delicate and very neat style of chirography. The insurance companies, under such an arrangement, "will have to come down a fraction on their risks." A lady clerk on a western steamer! It speaks "strongly of our moral progress."

CONFLICT WITH BURGLARS.

POLICEMAN SHOT BY THEM, AND ALMOST INSTANTLY KILLED.

This (Friday) morning, shortly before 3 o'clock, two burglers, who had broken into Mr. Logan's bakery in Ninth st., near Avenue C, were discovered by one of the inmates of the premises, and made a hasty retreat, pursued, however, by the individual who first saw them. He called for help, which attracted the atten-tion of policeman James Cahill, of the Eleventh tion of policeman James Cahill, of the Eleventh Word, who, seeing the rascals running off, gave chase and came up with them on the corner of Teath-st, and Avenue B. He immediately closed in with them and a struggle ensued, and during its centinuance of a few minutes pistol shots were discharged, when the two men, who had been seen struggling with the offi-ser by a female from an upper window of Mr. Simpson's residence near by, ron off. The reports of the pistol being heard by efficers Lake and Vermilyes, of the same district, they hastened to the spot, and saw their associate holding on to a small tree and staggering as if about to fall. They asked him if he was shot, in response to which he gave a groun, sank to the pavement, and expired in a few seconds afterward. His dead body was immediately conveyed to the Police station by the officers, where it awaits the holding of the Coroner's inquisition. The deceased had been connected with the Police Department for about a year. He lived in Ridge-st., where he has left a wife and several children. He was short 50 years of age, and born in Ireland. Three men have been arrested on suspicion of being concerned in the murder.

CITY ITEMS.

A friend of ours recently being left a widower and having a small family, he still cherished the notion of having them about him in his own home, so he sought help in an intelligence office. Our friend is a sympathetic soul, and seeing one poor girl more ordinary in her appearance than the others, he chose her for a trial. She assured him none could compare with her in all domestic duties, "only give me the convaniences," says she. "Biddy," said her master, next morning, "make some coffee, and when it is ready, call."
"Faith an' I will sir." And Biddy busied herself in preparing breakfast. After the lapse of some time, and no call, Biddy's master went in and found her engaged in building a pyramid of the sediment taken from the coffee pot, after having thrown the delicious liquid away. "Why, what are you doing Biddy!" "I am afther wondering d'ye ate the black stuff with butter on it, or how." Biddy was enlightened, and promised amendment. A few mornings after Biddy as troubled to kindle a fire; she had well-nigh burst her lungs and cheeks in her efforts to obtain a flame. At this juncture an inveterate joker, a friend of the family, steps in, and seeing Biddy's fix kindly volunteers to relieve her; so pointing to a horse pistol that hung against the wall, be bid her reach that down and point it at the refractory spark, intimating his astonishment that so intelligent a girl should not have known of its use before. She did as she was bid, and singularly enough the wood at the same moment be-gan to blaze. Biddy was in raptures to think how easy-only to point and it burns. Why, in Ireland they have to pull and push until their arms ache; would n't she know where to find it now. She was thankful to the gentleman for showing her, and Biddy was seen many mornings after that patiently pointing the big horse-pistol at the fire grate to kindle her fire. Successive failures, however, induced her subsequently to relinquish the novel experiment. Her last effort at cooking eclipsed all her other exploits. To the inquiry of her master, could she cook green corn, her indignant rejoinder, "Cook it, d'ye sny? Sure, hav n't I cooked it many's the time? silenced all scepticism, and she was instructed to pre-pare a choice lot of the best to be had in market. Noon came and with it hungry, expectant men. On the table stood a large pyramid of smoking corn-cobs; by the side of the table, like a faithful seatinel, stood Biddy with beaming eyes, watching alternately her master and the cobs. His eye caught the cobs. and, although very angry, he could not restrain his risibles and so roared out lustily, in which Biddy, ignorant of the cause, joined him heartily. "So, so, Biddy, you cooked me some corn did you !" said he person can tell her; she has green corn unmistakably marked on her countenance.

PRESERVING FRUITS IN VACUUM .- Joel L. Green of Cincinnati has invented and has on exhibition in this City, a method of sealing or soldering cans or bottles of fruit while in the receiver of an air-pump. The receiver may be likened to a big iron pot turned bottom-up upon an iron bed-plate with a ground joint. There are three glass windows, through which whatever is inside can be seen. In the center of the convex part of the receiver, there is a universal ball joint, and through that a sliding rod, to the lower end of which a heated so dering iron is attached, by which the cans can be soldered whenever the gauge shows that the air is properly exhausted by the working of Within the receiver there is a coil of steam pipe, by which any degree of heat can be obtained.

The apparatus will not be expensive, and will be useful to fruit growers, as it will enable them to put up fruit in that best of all ways, by exhausting the air, by which it can be kept without sugar, and without cooking enough to destroy the natural flavor. Butter, eggs, meat and sundry other articles of food can be preserved for an indefinite time by excluding the air. This invention will be useful for any purpose of working in vacuo where it is necessary to see and manipulate the article.

DEAD HEADS .- The Cleveland Herald of the 21st. in alluding to our article on the "Dead Head Sys-"tem," illustrates the subject as follows:

in elluding to our article on the "Dead Head Sys" "tem," illustrates the subject as follows:

"One day last week a train left Columbus having a very light load, numbering in all about sixty-two passengers and out of this number thirty-three were dead heads. It is not to be supposed that this proportion occurs on every train, but it did occur in the instance reterred to, and not from any peculiar circumstance existing just at that time. The insolence, however, of some who consider themselves entitled to what they please to cail 'the courtesies of the 'road, was strikingly shown but a short time since on the Cleveland, Columbus and Cincinnati Road. A landlord form a Broadway hotel—a two-dollar and-ahalf-day house—was making a pleasure trip across Ohio, from Cincinnati to this city, having in his team a party of five. From Cincinnati to Columbus the landlord's party were passed as dead heads under the right claimed by him as landlord of a hotel. The conductor, however who took the train at Columbus declined extending to the party of six the 'courte-sise of the road' from that city to this, but required payment of fare. On the arrival of this landlord at New-York be made out his hill for the amount of fare poid by him for his party from Columbus to Cleveiand—being the sun of $24—and forwarded the same to Cincinnati to a friend for collection. The amount was refunded, the bill sent to the effice in this city and paid out of the treasury of the C. C. and C. Company. We would ask, in all candor, what right that landlord had to travel over this road with his party at the expense of the stockholders' Will be paying the first own the will send him skylarking up six stories, and take $2.50 per day for the 'courte-sies of this house while he remains a gnest. The impudence of the thing only shows how necessary it is to work a radical reform, and cut up dead-headism by the roots."

A NEW GERMAN PAPER -We learn that the pub lication of a German Anti-Nebraska paper will shortly be commenced at Galena, Illinois, by Mesers Mayer & Stibelt, recently of Alton. They are able and reliable men, and we commend them to the warm, and efficient support of the Whigs and Republicans of the section of the State in which they propose to labor. Mr. Stibalt, the editor, the same gentleman who, it will be recollected, was read out of the Democratic Convention of Madison County, Illinois, because he, a German, arose against the Nebraska iniquity. We hope this dastardly act may be remembered and rebuked by the German citizens of Northwestern Ilinois. If they are true to themselves, they will be true to Mr. Stibelt, and liberal in their patronage. Galena is in the Congressional District represented by Mr. Washburne, who, we trust, will be reelected by an overwhelming majority. and reliable men, and we commend them to the warm, being the price usually said for housework. Milly states that the trequently made that at home, independent of other labor by wishing nights.

One of the conductors of the road arrived safe with a full train-fifteen in all.

Arrived at Windsor, C. W., from the Galt House, Louisville, Polty Jackson, Aug 17. She wishes to be kindly remembered to Mrs. Ellen Jarvis, the widow who claimed the right to be reason. She says nothing but her desire for freedem would have tempted her to leave Mrs. J. and the little children she had noned so long and faithful. She had the promise of freedom at 25, but is now 40 without even empoying the blessed privilege of breathing free air before this morning. The first impressions of a free country have fully met her former anticipations. Mrs. Revers, who accompanied her, says Amen to the latter sentiment.

A NEW METHOD OF STEALING SHOES.—Yesterday a ledy of genteel address went into a shoe store in Broadway, and wished to purchase a pair of shoes. The shopkeeper displayed several pairs, and the lady seated herself to try them on after which he turned to attend to another customer. Presently the lady said that none of the shoes fitted her, and was about to leave the store; but the man discovered that some of the shoes were missing. He did not know how many, but the supply he had placed before her was sufficiently diminished for him to be assured of the fact. He accordingly accused her of taking the shoes. She denied the charge, but her trepidation was sufficiently evident to justify the shopkeeper in itstruing a search. He accordingly commenced the delicate business, and was soon successful. He found several pairs of shoes suspended by a hook which was attached to the lady's garter, evidently for such purposes. He identified his own shoes, and left hanging there two or three pairs which did not belong to him. The lady was softened to tears, and glead with him not to expose or prosecute her, which he promised not to do. We bearned the circumstance, and him not to expose or prosecute her, which he promised not to expose or prosecute her, which he promised not to do. We learned the circumstance, and forhear names, as the lady is of undoubted respectability. This discovery should teach her a wholesome lesson.

Biddy, you cooked me some corn did you?" said he when he had cooked off a little.

"So I did," said she; "how d'ye like it!"

"These are the cobs, Biddy, where is the corn!"

"If ye mane those hits o' things I took from those holes, sure I threw them away," said she: and sure enough she had been at the trouble of picking the green corn from the cobs, boiled the cobe and thrown the corn away.

Biddy had leave of absence for an indefinite period, and should any humanitarian seek to cultivate her acquaintance she can probably be found in the same intelligence office she was taken from before. Any deafness. It was discussed in an agreeable, able and carnest manner, after which Mr. Fenn retired amid the prolonged applause of the andlence.

IMPORTANT MEETING OF THE CANAL BOARD. INFORTANT MEETING OF THE CANAL BOARD.—The Canal Board meets in Albany to day to consider the question of the location of the enlarged line of the Canal between Brighton and Macedon. In 1851 they decided to straighten the Canal, and thus shorten the distance between Brighton and Fairport by soveral miles. If the new line is carried, it leaves the village of Pittsford entirely and passes some two miles to the north-east of the present Canal. The question is one of great importance to all who navigate the canals, and of very imminent import to the business interests of Pittsford, Bushnell's Basin and Cartersville.

Bulwer, the novelist, in a letter to a gentleman in Boston, said: "I have closed my career as a writer of fiction. I am gleomy and unhappy. I have ax-bausted the powers of life, chasing pleasure where 'it is not to be found."

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

DISCOVERIES IN CHINA; OR, THE SYMBOLISM OF THE PRINITIVE CHARACTER OF THE CHINESE SYSTEM OF WRITING. By STEPHEN PEARL ANDREWS. Charles B. Norton.

The substance of this remarkable work was prepared several years since as a paper for the Ethnological Society, and then noticed at length by THE TRI-EUNE. By way of apology for delaying its publica-tion in permanent form, Mr. Andrews says: "I have been engaged upon a series of investigations, and I may say discoveries, in other branches of science, which I am now bringing so far to a close as to be engaged in their preparation for publication. In the department of Philology, I have in a state of some forwardness, a work embracing a fundamental analysis of the root words of the leading classical and modern European languages from a point of view entirely novel in this species of study, and which, I think, cannot fail to exercise an important influence upen all subsequent Philological views and methods. The attempt will be to found Etymology upon a new science, which I denominate Ideology—the philosophical and historical evolution of human thought, which has underlaid and inspired the development of human longuage, and is therefore logically precedent to it. It will be found that I give to this term, Ideology, an extension not contemplated by Destutt de Tracy, and perhaps others who may have employed it; and that what I mean is, in fact, entitled to be considered a new science." This announcement will inspire the expectation in those who know something of Mr. Andrews's devo-tion to Philology and the Philosophy of the Human Mind, that an advance is to be made in that de partment of Science. Apart from that expectation, the present work upon what may be called Chinese ology, applying the term to the composition of the written characters of that curious language, will establish his claim to an eminent rank among explor rs in this branch of Philology, and confer new honors upon American scholarship.

Since the death of Pickering and Puponceau, have had no Philologist in America who has enjoyed, as they did, a world wide reputation, and been considered as entitled to rank with such men as the Gerpans Bopp and Pott, the brothers Grimm, Lepsius, William Humboldt and Bunsen, and Prichard in England; and yet it is not certain that either Pickering or Duponceau secomplished anything bearing the stamp of originality in the Philological field equal to this colution of the mystery of Chinese writing by Mr.

Of the work itself, having given an analysis of Mr. Andrews's discoveries in this direction, and our estimate of their value to the commercial as well as the cientific world, on a former occasion, we shall say the less now. Two things occur to us, however, as favoring the demand of the public for this book. The first is its eminently popular character for a work of science upon a subject so out of the usual track of public interest. The composition of the characters offers a sort of a puzzle and a charm equal to a game or a child's riddle-book, so that the work cannot fail to attract many readers as an object of amusement, who have no higher species of interest in the subject. The second is the importance of the book and the sys-tem of study which it initiates to the Christian Missionary, and the interest which attaches to it for all the friends of China, as a great step gained toward breaking down the wall of separation between the Chinese and the European and American mind. A letter contained in the introduction from Yung Wing, a Chinese graduate of Yale College, and the fruit of one of the mission schools at Canton, written by him in classic English, is proof of the kind of good the missionaries are effecting in China. This work, as to its typographical execution, is in the usual creditable style of Mr. Norton.

A practical commentary on the words of Holy Writ, "Behold the fowls of the air," is presented in this plendid volume. It consists of popular descriptions of various birds mentioned in the Bible, with co pious illustrative selections from the poets. The ork is embellished with a profusion of engravings, and both the beauty of its execution and the interest of its contents make it an appropriate gift-book for the approaching holidays, and an ornament for the
